Department of Chinese Classics Education

Academics

The Department of Chinese Classics Education at Sungshin Women's University aims to cultivate educators specializing in Sinitic classics for middle and high schools, as well as experts in Sinographs and Sinitic texts. The educational significance lies in exploring Sinitic classics to contribute to the development of Korean traditional culture and nurturing qualities and abilities to create new national culture.

Upon graduation, students can pursue careers as middle and high school teachers, researchers in Sinitic classics-related institutions, curriculum development organizations, publishers, and traditional cultural organizations.

Additionally, graduates can work as education and counseling specialists in various corporate and social education institutions or pursue advanced studies in Sinograph and Sinitic texts education and research in Sinographic Literatures at the graduate level.

Educational Goals of Departments

- Cultivating well-rounded individuals through an education based on Eastern classics.
- Fostering creative educators in Sinographic classics with a combination of understanding and pedagogical skills.
- Developing autonomous practitioners capable of initiating various transformations based on educational capabilities.

Students Envisioned by Departments

Our department envisions students who embrace tradition while pursuing innovation, drawing from their deep understanding of classics and educational expertise. They are visionary scholars in Sinographic Classics at Sungshin, committed to shaping the future of education and cultural advancement.
